PREAMBLE

The American educational establishment has proved incapable of meeting the needs of our society. The students are not encouraged to think, nor are they afforded meaningful training to help them understand the critical issues confronting mankind today. Bound to the existing power structure and handicapped by modes of thought fostered by big business, by the military establishment, by consensus politics, and by the mass media, it is unable to consider freely and objectively the cultural, economic and political forces so rapidly transforming the modern world. The present educational system, in fact, defends the status quo, perpetuating its evils and perils. The system is incapable of reform; it is no longer receptive to meaningful change. A revolution in American education is required to meet today's needs, and a new type of university - a free university - must provide the impetus for change.

The Association for a Free University of Palo Alto has been organized to meet this challenge. It provides a center in which the people of this community can come together to discuss, to learn, and to communicate with one another, unencumbered by the restrictions found in conventional educational structures. Through courses and workshops offered on the basis of student demand, through discussion forums and meetings open to the public, and through action programs and cooperative services developed in response to the interests of participants, it seeks to become a vitalizing force in the community.
The doors of the Free University are open to all; its work is not limited to the customary university level. It has no prerequisites for admission, uses no system of grades or credits, and grants no degrees. It functions democratically and without administrative apparatus. Decisions will be arrived at jointly by teachers and students, who will at all times meet and work as equals.

Through this new approach to community education, the Free University seeks to develop in its participants a greater understanding of our time, enabling them to see it in its historical context, to evaluate its direction and to find ways to change it in terms of individual and social action. Should this be accomplished, the Free University will have attained its goal.

HISTORY AND SOCIAL THEORY .....................
...........................................Ira Arlook and Mike Pincus

This seminar will deal with the Marxist, Freudian, and Phenomenological approaches to the problems concerning the nature and use of history. The works of various theoreticians in the three fields will be utilized. Emphasis will be given to the nature of historical process and the question of the uses of history as a legitimate study of modern society.

Tuesday 7:30 P.M.

PROBLEMS OF ORGANIZING .........................
..............................................Bill Cole

A "how to" workshop which will talk about organizing in the community, and ways of organizing a protest movement. The purpose is to develop the capacity of individuals or groups to organize and/or support a cause or a project. Consideration will be given to such questions as: what is an organization and organizing? Why organize? Who organizes? What are the implications? Various kinds of organizing will be discussed with emphasis on mechanics and the problem of why people seem to be incompetent or ineffectual in dealing with their community.

Monday 7:30 P.M.
CREATIVE WRITING ............................................. Arthur Eisenson

An informal seminar to give students an opportunity to read what they've been writing and have it discussed and criticized.

Wednesday 7:30 P.M.

PROTEST MOVEMENTS AND PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE ........................................ Norm Fontaine

A seminar to stimulate better protest organizations. An examination of a creative theory of the use of psychology as a system of force - without violence - against the common enemy opposing the rights of free people, to find his "Achilles Heel" and do him OUT.

Monday 7:30 P.M.

METHODS OF SELF-STUDY ........................................ Harold V. Freeman

The class will study the following: the effects of posture and breathing upon mental efforts; effects of environment and their control; types of environmental influences, internal and external; relaxation and concentration; mental blocks - their identification and removal; visualization - real and imaginary, their control and use.

Tuesday 7:30 P.M.

EXISTENTIAL PHENOMENOLOGY: FREEDOM AND RESPONSIBILITY .............. Barry Greenberg

Analysis of the ideas of Husserl, Heidegger, Sartre, Suetze, and Merleau-Ponty. Emphasis will be on attempting to relate phenomenological thought to the problems of ethics and political action. Some background in Hegelian, Marxist and existential thought is required.

Friday 7:30

CAPITALISM, KEYNES, AND THE AMERICAN ECONOMY ................................ Eleanor Isaksen

Keynesian economics, the prevailing influence on the United States' economic policy today, will be critically discussed through examination of major economic thought leading up to Keynes, Keynes' own contribution to economic thought and the conditions which brought Keynes into such general acceptance, and through alternatives to Keynes in the world today.

Wednesday 7:30

NONVIOLENCE AND ITS SOCIAL ORGANIZATION .................................... Roy Kepler

An inquiry into the theory, history, and practice of nonviolent resistance; its relationship to peace, freedom, and social justice; its use as a revolutionary world method.

Monday 7:30
THE U.S. ECONOMY AND THE IMPACT OF AUTOMATION
........................................Hildegarde Kneeland

An examination of the organization and current performance of the U.S. economy and prospects ahead as automation and computers increasingly reduce the need for human labor. Topics considered will include: the potentialities of abundance; problems of employment and unemployment; changes in class structure and income distribution; the economic outlook for Negro Americans; prospects for a demilitarized economy. Emphasis will be placed on developing a factual basis for evaluating various proposals for social change, and the seminar will conclude with discussion of some of these proposals.

Thursday 7:30

ELEMENTARY CHINESE.................................Charles Li

Emphasis will be on conversation in the Mandarin dialect.

Time to be arranged.

CHINESE REVOLUTION.................................Charles Li

The seminar will begin with a brief consideration of the nature of revolutions and peasant uprisings in the ancient Chinese Empire. These considerations will provide background for a more detailed account of the revolution in modern China that began with Dr. Sun Yat Sen’s movement and continued on to the final victory of the proletarian revolution. Discussion will also touch on revolution elsewhere in East Asia.

Friday 7:30

AMERICAN YOUTH IN REVOIL .........................Victor R. Lovell

This course will be concerned with three questions: (1) Who are the social radicals in contemporary America? (2) Who are their critics and opponents? (3) What are the prospects for a social revolution of the younger generation? The psychology of the American Organization will be contrasted with the psychology of the American Underground. Topics to be covered will include the Berkeley Free Speech Movement, the use of marijuana and psychedelic materials, the social psychology of counter-institutions, the comparative structure of contemporary social issues.

Wednesday 7:30 p.m.

NEO-AFRICAN LITERATURE ............................Janheinz Jahn

This course will deal with the relation between literatures produced by Negroes in areas where there is conflict or contact with white men. Study will consist of reading fiction from West Africa, South Africa, West Indies, and the Americas. All novels will be in English although some poems will be in either native French or Spanish. The general reference book available is Muntu by Janheinz Jahn, which should be read as soon as possible by those wanting to take the course.

Wednesday 7:30 p.m.
THE RISE OF THE CIO .......................... Merry Maisel

The history of organized labor as a series of struggles related to today's fights for human rights, self-determination, and social justice. Attention will be given to tactics, government opposition, methods of social change, differences between labor leadership and the rank-and-file, reasons for successes and failures, recent developments and new perspectives. Tapes, films, and speakers will be used when available.

A study of Marx's distinctive contribution to our understanding of reality. The course will compare the Marxist approach with earlier and subsequent philosophic systems and stress its relevance to contemporary problems.

Thursday 7:30 P.M.

AMERICAN RADICAL MOVEMENTS ............... Mike Pincus

This course will deal with the history of six American radical movements and their formulas for the solving of social problems. The emphasis will be on the nature of radicalism, its importance, and the reasons for its success or failure at various times in American history. The material will then be related to modern radical movements growing in the United States today. The movements to be considered are the abolitionists, the transcendentalists, the populists, early industrial unionism, literary radicalism, and communism of the 1930s.

Monday 7:30

FRENCH LITERATURE: 20th-CENTURY REVOLT .......................... John Nash

The course will examine several new modes of thought which arose in France in this century. Themes will include the new idealism, preoccupation of the exploration of higher reality through art and literature, the displacement of romanticism by symbolism, cubism, and surrealism. The works of Alfred Jarry, Pierre Reverdy, and Antonin Artaud will be the basis for the study. The material will be translated into English...........Friday 7:30 P.M.

BEGINNING RUSSIAN ............................ Raggs Ragan

Fundamentals of Russian by Lunt will be used. Emphasis on writing and grammar as well as speaking with concentration on the logic and relatedness of various language elements; thus, there will be a minimum of memorization and a maximum of deduction.

Lowell, Snodgrass, Kunitz, Berryman, Roethke, and Jarrell (this list subject to change at the decision of the class). Enrollment limited to fifteen persons.

By arrangement

DANIEL DELEON - SOCIAL ARCHITECT

(Lenin was a great admirer of DeLeon, considering him the greatest of modern socialists - "the only one who has added anything to Socialist thought since Marx" - John Reed).

The seminar will analyze the contributions of DeLeon to American revolutionary thought with special emphasis on his concept of Socialist Industrial Unionism. An effort will be made to demonstrate that this program of economic organization is the logical extension of Marxism oriented to the conditions of a highly industrialized nation - a civilized method for effecting a revolutionary change in a fully-developed capitalist system.

Monday 7:30 P.M.

HISTORY OF MATHEMATICAL THOUGHT

Historical survey of important developments in mathematical thinking, beginning with Greek mathematics and continuing up until the present. Emphasis on trends of thought, rather than on specific discoveries.

Thursday 7:30 P.M.
RADICAL APPROACHES TO CONTEMPORARY EDUCATION

An analysis of radical theories of education and an evaluation of their application to reality. Some of the crucial problems to be discussed are: childhood learning experiences, the family, school, and society as liberating or crippling forces; handicap contributing to illiteracy among minority groups; the conflicts between teachers' goals and the demands of a bureaucratic school system.

Friday 7:30 P.M.

INTERIOR DECORATING FOR THE LAYMAN........

A courageous and realistic approach to the ordinary home, making it a beautiful, comfortable place in which to live. A brainwashing for the Madison Avenue dicta on decorating. The student's eye will be trained to see, compare and evaluate the possible ranges of sizes, shapes, patterns, colors, textures, etc., in relationship to their uses in solving decorating problems.

Wednesday 1:30 P.M.

EFFECTIVE FUNCTIONING WITHIN GROUPS........

This seminar will place emphasis on the development in the individual of better approaches, understandings, and techniques of group functioning with the goal of maximum effective participation in groups as a member and as a leader.
